Scope and Content

Aspects of daily life as told by Kit Calvert, including memories of his childhood. Starting around 1910-11, there are regular mentions of money, unemployment and hardship in the Dales, particularly during the Depression. He also provides specific and individual examples of Dales folk having to deal with adversity.

THE W.R. MITCHELL ARCHIVE

4/1/2/2/WRM010_B- Mp3 file-full interview recording

Scope and Content

Kit Calvert talks about the Depression and the difficulties farmers faced. He explains how the creation of the Milk Marketing Board in 1933 coincided with the Hawes creditor farmers taking over the town creamery.

The nature of dales folk is discussed, their 'strength in adversity', and whether this is attributable to a Norse heritage, the influence of Chapel, or simply the weather, the isolation and the poverty of rural Dales hamlets.

Mr.Dyson recalls buying his first smallholding, Buckley Farm Stanbury, in 1939. With the help of his wife Mrs.Peggy Dyson (PD) and a friend and neighbour Adrian Bancroft (AB), he recounts living and working on that smallholding and the other farms he has bought and worked in the Stanbury area, including Ponden Hall Farm. With a background in farming for over 50 years they relate many interesting stories, and often with humour. The interview is noteworthy for its poetic regional dialect, comical turn of phrase, its gusto and articulacy. They relate how they made a living with very few resources, and grew over the years, still retaining their down to earth approach to life and farming.

Scope and Content

In this interview Philip Dawson (PD) describes his childhood in Burnsall to Bill Mitchell (WRM) his family property history, as well as that of other old families in the area. In Philip Dawson's interview with WR Mitchell he explains how his grandmother, Mary Bevan, is described in "Kilvert's Diary". This diary was written by Francis Kilvert, an English Clergyman, as a reflection on rural life. The diary covers the period 1870 to 1879 when

THE W.R. MITCHELL ARCHIVE

Kilvert died aged 38. The Reverend had parishes around Wiltshire and the Welsh border providing the connection to Mary Bevan, as she was the daughter of the Archdeacon of Brecon. Sadly not all of the volumes of the diary have survived to the present day apart from three. Mary Bevan did not marry until the age of thirty eight. She was a genealogist. Although she had no official education she was respected for her intelligence. She gained a reputation with some for being a witch as she always dressed in black!

Mr.Dyson recalls buying his first smallholding, Buckley Farm Stanbury, in 1939. With the help of his wife Mrs.Peggy Dyson (PD) and a friend and neighbour Adrian Bancroft (AB), he recounts living and working on that smallholding and the other farms he has bought and worked in the Stanbury area, including Ponden Hall Farm. With a background in farming for over 50 years they relate many interesting stories, and often with humour. The interview is noteworthy for its poetic regional dialect, comical turn of phrase, its gusto and articulacy. They relate how they made a living with very few resources, and grew over the years, still retaining their down to earth approach to life and farming.

5/5/3/1/WRW057- Full transcript of Interview with Philip Dawson

Scope and Content

In this interview Philip Dawson (PD) describes his childhood in Burnsall to Bill Mitchell (WRM) his family property history, as well as that of other old families in the area. In Philip Dawson's interview with WR Mitchell he explains how his grandmother, Mary Bevan, is described in "Kilvert's Diary". This diary was written by Francis Kilvert, an English Clergyman, as a reflection on rural life. The diary covers the period 1870 to 1879 when Kilvert died aged 38. The Reverend had parishes around Wiltshire and the Welsh border providing the connection to Mary Bevan, as she was the daughter of the Archdeacon of Brecon. Sadly not all of the volumes of the diary have survived to the present day apart from three. Mary Bevan did not marry until the age of thirty eight. She was a genealogist. Although she had no official education she was respected for her intelligence. She gained a reputation with some for being a witch as she always dressed in black!
